

Scripture and Healing:

Perspectives from the Yoruba and Christian Traditions

A conversation cosponsored by the Interfaith Center of New York, Ifaworks, and New York Theological Seminary

The sacred texts of our diverse faith traditions are much more than simply books on the shelf. In many traditions, clergy and counselors draw on their scriptures to promote holistic healing for individuals and communities. Please join us to explore the transformational power of scripture, in a rich dialogue between Yoruba and Christian scholars and faith leaders. The speakers will be:

Dr. Insook Lee

Associate Professor of Pastoral Care and Counseling at New York Theological Seminary, and a minister of Word and Sacrament in the Presbyterian Church,
U.S.A.

Chief Solagbade Popoola

Leading Nigerian
Ifa priest (Babalawo), scholar, teacher, co-founder of Ifaworks, and author, most recently, of *Omoluabi:
The Description of a Complete Human Being*

The program will include time for questions and conversation. It will be introduced by Baba Antonio Mondesire, Awo Ifa, and moderated by Dr. Henry Goldschmidt, Director of Education Programs at the Interfaith Center of New York.

Please join us on Thursday, October 30th, from 12:00 to 1:00 pm, with lunch available afterwards.
At the Interchurch Center, 475 Riverside Drive, enter on Claremont Ave. b'twn 119th & 120th Streets.

Admission is free, but a small donation is suggested.
For information contact hgoldschmidt@interfaithcenter.org.

All are welcome to join this exciting conversation!
